Lebanon Woos Syria On Eve of Conference

By Herbert H. Denton BEIRUT - The Lebanese gov-

enument is seeking to repair rela-tions with Syria only a month after Beirut feared that Syrian support of opposition forces was aimed at toppling the government, observers

The tactic is aimed at trying to reduce tensions before a meeting in Geneva next week of the Lebanese factions, who include Syria's allies. Syria and Saudi Arabia will have observers at the conference.

On Wednesday, President Amin Gemayel of Lebanon telephoned President Hafez al-Assad of Syria to invite him formally to send an observer. The call was their first direct contact in eight months. On Friday, aides said Mr. Gemayel had intended to fly by helicopter to Damascus to meet with Mr. Assad but the trip was postponed for unexplained reasons.

Western observers here familiar with the Gemayel government's thinking said its representatives in Geneva next week had decided to start by saying "encouraging things" to the Syrians.

Reports here and in Damascus described the 15-minute telephone conversation between Mr. Gemayel and Mr. Assad as friendly, "Let's remain in touch," Mr. Assad reportedly said at the end.

Informed diplomatic sources said that Syria would be represented at next week's conference by Foreign Minister Abdel-Halim Khaddam, Reuters reported.]

NEW YORK - Monkeys with their ovaries removed have given birth to normal offspring in experiments that strongly suggest that humans could do the same.

Medical scientists said the research offered hope of parenthood for a substantial group of women who are sterile because their ovaries do not function normally.

One research group in the United States is planning to use a similar technique early next year for infertile women. The pregnancies would be adopove in the sense that the fertilized female egg would come from a donor.

Only the United States and the other members of the multinational force in Lebanoo can keep the Syrians from toppling the government of President Amin Gemayel, the

In this season of beightened ora-

On Wednesday Mr. Reagan told group of visitors, "I think the evidence that I have is sufficient that this last horrendous act involved Iranian terrorists and they were facilitated in their entry and in the provision of the munitions by the Syrians."

State Department officials cauconed against drawing any conclusions, but one official said that "after Grenada, any-thing's possible."

The apparent purpose of the speech Thursday, however, was to be tough but not bellicose at a time when many allies are concerned that Mr. Reagan has been too quick on the trigger in Grenada and too explosive in his vocabulary. The president seemed to be hop-ing that by standing firm in Leba-

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — U.S. troops will be needed in Honduras indefinitely unless the leftist government of Nicaragua is overthrown, the Foreign Ministry says. About 3,500 U.S. troops have been involved in exercises here since August.

French Socialist Warns Communists

BOURG-EN-BRESSE, France (Reuters) - The leading official of the governing Socialist Party on Friday warned the party's Communist partners in the cabinet to stop sniping at government policy.

The Socialist first secretary, Lionel Jospin, said at the party congress here that if the criticism did not stop, the credibility of the governing alliance would be lost. Political sources said Mr. Jospin was speaking with President François Mitterrand's approval.

Mr. Jospin was particularly critical of the Communist Party's call for French muclear forces to be taken into consideration at U.S. Soviet arms talks in Geneva. He also singled out the Communists' failure to give full backing to France's role in Chad and in Lebanon, and its reservations about some aspects of the government's economic policy. He did not spell out the consequences of a Communist refusal to be more supportive.

UNITED NATIONS, New York (Reuters) — The Security Council on Friday condemned South Africa for blocking the creation of an independent Namibia from South-West Africa by setting as a precondition the withdrawal of Cuban troops from neighboring Angola.

Washington has supported the South African demand for the with-drawal of an estimated 30,000 Cuban troops in Angola. Officials in Angola and other countries in the region have rejected the demand, saying the issue is unrelated to that of an independent Namibia.

The judge in their case said they had helped to cause many thousands of U.S. casualties in Korea, and President Eisenhower also condemned their

But many Americans have continued to believe that the Rosenbergs were innocent and were the scapegoats of spy fever. Two of them, Walter and Miriam Schneier, published a book called "Invitation to an Inquest" in 1965 and an updated version this year. It coincided with the publication of a book written by former sup-porters of the Rosenbergs who now believe that Mr. Rosenberg was a spy and his wife probably at least knew of his activities. U.S. Vetoes UN Motion On Invasion

The Associated Prest UNITED NATIONS, New York - The United States, abandoned by most of its allies and denounced as an aggressor, blocked passage Friday of a United Nations Security Council resolu-tion that would "deeply deplore" the U.S.-led invasion of Grenada.

The voting, shortly before 3 A.M., followed three days of de-bate by more than 60 speakers. Most of them deplored Tuesday's invasion as a violation of internadonal law and the UN Charter.

In debate Thursday night, Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, the U.S. delegate to the United Nations, said the United States and six Caribbean forces invaded Grenada to stop "an au-thentic reign of terror" after the killing of Grenada's prime minis-ter, Maurice Bishop.

In win the broadest possible support, the resolution's sponsors, Nicaragua, Guyana and Zimba-bwe, used the phrasing "deeply de-plores" instead of "condemns." Charles M. Resistance leaders agreed with U.S. assertions that the Russians have resorted to illegal chemical warfare in Afghanistan. During my visit to the Panishir Valley I was shown a captured Soviet gas mask. but I came across no evidence of outlawed chemical weapons.

Faced with the shortcomings of their ground forces, the Russians have been devoting greater effort to a political war against the mujahi-din, according to Afghan resistance leaders and Western diplomats, More energy has been put into subverting the resistance by infiltrating informers, setting groups against each other and buying off Afghan tribes, they said. Sterile Monkeys Give Birth After Embryo Transplants

Gary D. Hodgen of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, a unit of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Maryland.
"The clinical implications of these primate studies may be farreaching," his report said, "because they indicate new potential for childbearing by otherwise infertile or sterile women." Dr. Hodgen defend this women of women as these fined this group of women as those with a normal uterus but without a normal functioning of the ovaries.

He said many thousands of previously childless women might be helped.

"I think it is a major landmark."
said Dr. John E. Buster of the University of California at Los Angeles whose group transplanted embryos into infertile women with ovarian hormone function earlier this year. Dr. Buster said his group expected to use a technique derived from Dr. Hodgeo's research in infertile women within several months. In the experiments, hormones were implanted in the female monkeys in Silastic packages to make them diffuse into the circulation with the same timing and in the same dosage that would occur in one whose ovaries functioned norfertilized eggs and early embryos were washed out of their reproductive tracts and implanted in other female monkeys that were sterile because their ovaries had been removed surgically. These recipients had been primed by hormone treatment beforehand to make their reproductive cycles match those of the donors.

A total of 11 early embryos were transplanted and four pregnancies carried to term. In one case the transfer was between a cynomologus monkey and a thesus. This success across species lines suggests there will be no immunologic incompatibility problems when transfers are made between two unrelated women, Dr. Hodgen

The process is called surrogate embryo transfer.

"In any discussion of these matters, it is relevant to mention that child adoption is considered highly ethical in most segments of society," said Dr. Howard W. Jones Jr. of Eastern Virginia Medical School in an editorial.

Dr. LeRoy Walters of the Kennedy Institute of Ethics at Georgetown University noted that of all the options for helping infertile women have children, surrogate embryo transfer "most closely ap-Fertile female monkeys were proximates the usual process of

Imitation Is an Expensive Form of Flattery in the Art Market

P OR the last 150 years or so, the ootion of authenticity has played a major role in our nesthetic judgment. In the accepted heir-archy of artistic values, a work could be admired or considered significant only if executed at the time when its style had been developed. If done later, it was hardly worth looking at. "Imitative" or "derivative" were terms of artistic abuse.

Recent sales suggest that the old criteria are slowly being eroded. Works of art that were worth almost nothing a decade ago bave acquired a new status. Striking examples can be cited in diverse and amples can be cited in diverse and unrelated fields — ballet drawings.

This fall's mild weather in the United States is making it difficult to find woolly bear caterpillars, which Jack Hershey of the Hagerstown Town and Country Almanack says is making it tough to predict whether this winter will be a harsh ooe.

The cataloging might have been just as wohbly, the general price level would have been lower, but greater distinction would have been instinctively made between early pieces and late imitation work.

Art-historical information was not more widespread, but the peo-ple who bought in those days did so on the basis of experience they had acquired over the years. They trained themselves by handling objets d'art at auction previews and by browsing about antique shops wheo thousands of very good pieces in every field of art were still lying around.

The abundance is gone, and with it the chance of acquiring such training. To look briefly at an object in a museum's glass case is one thing, to handle it and scrutinize from every angle, get the feel of it in your hand, observe every detail of technique and ouance of patina is another - particularly when you have to make your own decisioo and risk your own money.

Io the last two decades, the visual approach has gradually given way to a kind of detached, art-historical attitude. Characteristically, auction catalog entries have lenthened to inordinate proportions, bristling with references to comparative material. With Scrutiny by None

No one was surprised last month when the Soviet government refused to let reporters near the place where Korean Flight 007 had been shot down: Everybody knows how open the Russians are to public scrutiny. But there is plenty of reason for surprise now, in Grenada, for this time it is the U.S. government that has been trying to keep the public in the dark.

At first it kept out all reporters, period. Even Thursday afternoon it let in only a small group, not including even one newspaper reporter, and for only a few hours.

How does the Reagan administration justify thus trying to blind press and public? It gives three explanations; each is feeble, infuriating

■ Danger. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said reporters were harred because the troops were unable "to guarantee any kind of safety." Safety? Let Mr. Weinberger consider the fwo Jima memorial, not a mile from his office - the marines raising the flag on Mount Suribachi. How much safety does he think was guaranteed to Joe Rosenthal of The Associated Press, who took the famous picture?

Let Mr. Weinberger think about the 53 reporters who died in Southeast Asia between 1961 and 1975. They knew the government bore no responsibility for their safety. So did the government. All it asked for then was that they sign releases from federal responsibility.

Military necessity. General John Vessey
Jr., the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the operation required surprise. For a brief time that was a responsible concern, but to bar reporters is a sledgehammer solution. Even in World War If reporters were allowed along on operations, including commando operations, subject to news embargoes or appropriate censorship.

There is another necessity, the same one that led the Air Force to take William Laurence of The Times on the flight that dropped the atomic bomb on Nagasaki in 1945. Democracies depend on trust, and trust in war, small or large, depends on credible witnesses

I I'm just a civilian. Secretary Weinberger's most astonishing rationale was that the commanders of the operation did not want reporters along, and he "wouldn't ever dream of overriding a commander's decision." What a perversion of the idea of civilian control of the military. If some general does not understand the big principle at stake, then civilian commanders - including the defense secretary surely should.

The principle is not hard to grasp. It is not a case of accommodating a few hundred reporters nr their employers. It is a case of responsi-bility to 235 million Americans who depend on those reporters. The public needs to know what its government is doing, the more so when it commits troops to an expedition whose wisdom is debated so heatedly. When a government flouts that need for knowledge so baldly, it ignites blazing suspicion.

Does the administration regard itself as beyond public scrutiny? Or does it have something to hide, fearing that an informed public would be less supportive of the intervention? If it is neither, then let the administration open up, and promptly. Let it demonstrate that America intervened in Grenada with its eyes

- THE NEW YORK TIMES.

How Large the Quotas

Everybody agrees that it would be best for the United States and Japan to settle the automobile import quarrel before President Reagan's trip to Japan. He is scheduled to land in Tokyn on Nov. 9. But not everybody can agree how large those quotas should be. The present quota agreement expires at the end of March. Under it, Japan ships 1.68 million cars a year to the United States. Most of the American automobile industry - with one gigantic exception - wants an indefinite extension of the status quo. One argument is that the overpriced dollar, and the underpriced yen, give the Japanese manufacturers an advantage that no possible cost-cutting or gains in productivity in American plants can match. That is not a frivilous point. The Japanese government wants the quotas ended but is willing to extend the agreement for a year if the quotas are expanded.

The Reagan administration is against import restrictions in principle, and that principle is correct. But at this point you would probably be right in assuming that its first choice is a year's extension to get through the election, at whatever level draws the least protest from the companies and the United Auto Workers. Here things get complicated.

General Motors wants to bring in about 300,000 Isuzu and Suzuki cars annually, beginning next summer — these are very small cars, some capable of 60 miles (96 kilometers) to a gallon of gasoline. GM says that it cannot possibly compete with imports among the smallest and least expensive models. Its strategy is to import little cars from its Japanese affiliates to put into Chevrolet showrooms to attract young huyers who, if they follow the familiar pattern, will come back in several years for larger and more expensive replacements — this time American-built Chevrolets.

If the import quotas remain at the present level, Toyota's and Nissan's sales will have to be scaled down to make room for GM's Isuzus and Suzukis. Toyota's and Nissan's American dealers do not think that is fair. But if GM's cars are added on top of the present quota, there will be vehement protests from GM's American competiturs. Chrysler says it is bolding np the tooling for its next generation of small cars until it sees what happens.

The auto quotas are no longer a simple dispute between an American position and a Japanese position. The shoving and elbowing on each side of the table is getting rougher. While the quotas will be extended for another year, they may not hold up a great deal longer than that. If they are not ended by the application of presidential open-market principles, the changing nature of competition in a turbulent industry may do the job.

- THE WASHINGTON POST.

Other Opinion

Russia, America and Grenada

Inexorably, the gap between Washington and Moscow continues to widen. The latest initiative in this regard came from Yuri Andropov, who has solemnly affirmed that the deployment of Pershing-2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe "will make it impossible to pursue the Geneva negotiations."

Encouraged, no doubt, by the success of last week's peace demonstrations, Mr. Andropov is seeking to exploit the arguments that President Reagan has handed him on a platter with the launching of the Grenadian odyssey. He does this by insisting on the adventurism and unpredictability of the president of the United States. How, in such conditions, could the people of Europe trust their fate to such a man? The argument is likely to meet with a certain amount of success, and also has the enormous merit of making people forget the affair of the South Korean Boeing jet. . . .

Little by little, a new Soviet strategy is emerging, one that might be called "playing for time." Until when? Simply until Mr. Reagan is forced to turn power over to a new man who, Moscow bopes, will be more conciliatory and more open to dialogue. It is likely, in these circumstances, that rather than narrowing, the American-Soviet gap will widen even more.

- Le Monde (Paris). Ronald Reagan has shown himself to be a man of state who is capable of acting decisively, with strength and speed when he believes his country's interests are at stake. To allow the Soviet Union to install, with the aid of Cuban mercenaries, a military base in the island of Grenada - 2,400 kilometers from Florida, 2,200 kilometers from the strategic Panama Canal Zone, 160 kilometers from Venezuela, which is one of the greatest oil producers in the world - would have been, for the American president, an error that History would not have pardoned.

Greece: Still a Populist Mood

The first Socialist government in the history nf Greece came in power two years ago with a simple slogan; change. [Last] week the govern-ment of Andreas Papandreou held an unprecedeuted demonstration in Athen's Constitution Square. In the past, such demonstrations have been the prerogative of left-wing opposition groups or military dictatorships. It is a sign of the continuing strength of the Papandreou government halfway through its period of office that it can still capture a populist mood.

Mr. Papandreou is massaging a national ego much in need of a little massage. To the demonstrators, the fact that Greece refused to condemn the military takeover in Poland or the shooting down of the Korean airliner with sufficient vigor for the hard men of NATO and the EC is nor a cause of complaint; it is an indication that Greece is an active player on the European stage. The fact that Greece gave America a hard time over its bases is an indication that you can't push Greece around any more. The fact that the government treats its fellow NATO member Turkey as more of a threat than the Warsaw Pact is no more than a statement of historic realities.

1908: How Europe Is Lining Up BERLIN - Baron Achrenthal's instantaneous response in his Budapest speech apropos of the solidarity of the Powers of the Triple Alliance, has completed the picture of the political situation. It means that Austria-Humgary and Germany stand back in back as against Russia and England, with France trying to make matters smooth between both, and, as the "Berliner Tageblatt" editorial rather amusingly put it. Turkey is standing like Helen on the wall during the first Homeric battle, giving her heart first to one and then to the other. It is agreed that the Bulgarian government is prepared to give way in the matter.

1933: Fascism's Pride in Italy ROME - The first comprehensive account of expenses of the past 10 years on public works, a field which has been the particular pride of the Fascist regime, was published today. The grand total, including works ordered during the decade but to be paid for in the future, was 36.9 billion line. Public building, land reclamation schemes, highways and hydraulic developments have absorbed the greater part of the funds. The minister of public works makes no attempt to answer critics who have doubted the economic wisdom of Fascism's partiality for expenditures on public works when condi-tions might have suggested another course.

A Changing Picture in the Mideast

It May Be Time for a New American Mediator

CAIRO — President Reagan keeps focusing America's Middle East policy on confounding the Russians, who in fact are keeping a low profile. The risk in looking through the wrong end of the telescope is missing the intricate changes in regional relations.

The most obvious development has been the emergence of Syrian influence. Certainly the Russians helped with their massive military resupply after last year's humiliating losses during the Israeli war in Lebanon.

But there is no evidence Syria is bending to Moscow's demands. On the contrary, the Syrians are asserting their own traditional ambition of making Damascus the dominant regional power center, in effect, the President Hafez al-Assad has, as many have said, been very clever at boldly advancing his pawns, prudently reserving his major force and exploiting the fears and weakness of others. But he has also gamed from an unusual coincidence of circumstances. First was the Arabs' boycott of Egypt after the peace with Israel. cond was Iraq's misguided war with Iran, a bid for regional supremacy that backfired. Third was Israel's invasion of Lebanon, which overturned tables but not into the pattern General Ariel Sharon had planned.

Mr. Mubarak is concerned now lest the bloody morass of Lebanon distract Washington from the larger distract Washington from the larger issues. He is pressing for the United States to revive Mr. Reagan's Middle East peace initiative now that the Palestine Liberation Organization is openly split anyway, and to accelerate Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon.

There is a sense in Cairo that unless some political momentum is soon injected, combat and confrontation will widen. That is one reason Mr. Mubarak warned President Reagan against reprisals for the bomb attack on American marines.

There is also an assumption that the United States can do nothing constructive in the area in a presidential election year. A year is too much precious time to lose in a fluid period, Nobody thinks the moment is ripe for a great breakthrough, but there is read need for a signal of hope that something may be starting.

A new American mediator could give such a signal, providing it is a person of stature and large experi-ence. President Reagan's Middle East record boasts no successes. There would be domestic advantage in depoliticizing the appointment as he has sought to do with bipartisan moves on arms control and Central America. There is no place for another commission. But a distinguished democratic diplomat would fill the hill. Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance leaps to mind.

In Grenada, in addition to the danger to several bundred young Americans, we had seen the government of Maurice Bishop overthrown, Mr. Bishop himself murdered (possibly for seeking better relations with the United States), and the Cubans on the verge of becoming the only force sufficient to control events. The more imaginative interpreters of the international scene claim that the invasion of Grenada establishes a Reagan version of the Brezhnev doctrine. The absurdity of that view will soon be tested.

The view here is that Spain has effectively been priced out in an economically rewarding entry into the EC, and that France has pulled the coup it had long been preparing.

The "breakthrough" mentioned in the dispatches took place in a meeting of EC agricultural ministers in Luxembourg. They "adjusted their olive oil, fruit and vegetable subsidy program and agreed to a common negotiating stance in farm talks next year with Spain and Portugal." This should make it possible for the EC to present a formal dossier on farm trade to Spain and Portugal before the end of the year.

But that is little cause for excitement, according to Spanish economists and government officials, What was missing in the reports from Lux-embourg was the fine print, the details on the agreement on fruits and vegetables reached by the 10 EC nations. And the agreement poses ruinous conditions on Spain.

The Luxembourg agreement places an added import tax, which will range between 8 and 20 percent, on fruit and vegetable exports to the EC from other countries, including Spain. This heavy tax would be applied to Spanish produce for at least four years after Spain became a member of the EC, since France has succeeded in imposing its condition of a protracted integration period for Spanish Fruits and vegetables are not the

First Chicago's Record Regarding "New Tactics Turn fround First Chicago" (IHT, Aug. 27) by Winston Williams:

The story you published concerning First Chicago made a most unfortunate and inaccurate reference to me, particularly with regard to loans which had somehow left the affairs of the bank "messy," and the characterization of the bank as "wandering" under my stewardship.

The record of my four and one half years as chairman and chief executive of First Chicago is otherwise. In 1977, First Chicago reported record earnings of $111 million ($2.80 per share), in 1978, record earnings of $131 million ($3.30 per share), and in 1979, of $115 million ($2.91 per share). ECONOMIC SCENE

1984 Election Likely to Turn On Issue of Reaganomics' Success

TEW YORK — Is Reaganomics a winner or a loser? The 1984 presidential election is more likely to turn on that issue than on any other, unless the administration's conduct of foreign policy — in El Salvador, Nicaragua, Lebanon, Grenada and perhaps other theaters still to come - becomes the main issue.

Herbert Stein, professor of economics at the University of Virginia, senior fellow of the American Enterprise Institute and former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Richard M. Nixon, still considers it highly probable that, whatever else happens, economics will remain a strong factor in the election.

Writing in current issue of The A.E.I. Economist, which he edits, Mr. Stein says one can already tell with great confidence what the economic platforms of both perties will be. "The platforms," he they can be summed says, "will be the same, and they can be summed up in one word:

The platforms will be the same, and up in one word: 'See!'

But the two parties will ask the electorate to look at different things. The Republicans, according to Stein, will say: "See how good things are under our management of the economy. Inflation is way down, taxes are down, interest rates are down and unemployment is falling."

The Democrats, Mr. Stein writes, will say: "See how terrible things are.

Unemployment is much higher than when Ronald Reagan came into office. Real GNP has risen less than during Jimmy Carter's four years. Despite the cut in taxes, real per-capita income after tax has also risen less than during the Carter term. Anyway, the Reagan tax cut went mainly to the rich. There are more people living below the poverty line than at any time during the Carter administration. Moreover, the country under Mr. Reagan has been introduced to higher budget deficits than have ever been seen before, and these deficits threaten the future of the weak recovery that has begun.

Suspicion Unwarranted

The second Since Mr. Stein's statement of the Democratic platform claims are about three times as long as his statement of the Republican platform, one might ask why he did not give the Republicans equal time and begin to suspect that he has decided to defect to the Democrats, an unwarrant-In Leban

He presents an early version of the numbers voters will have to assess, using the actual results for four years of the Carter administration and two years of Mr. Reagan, with his estimates of what the last two years under Mr. Reagan will produce:

Real gross national product will show an average annual gain of 2 percent under Mr. Reagan, compared with 3.25 percent under Mr. Carter.
 The Consumer Price Index will rise by an average of 4.5 percent under Mr. Reagan, compared with 10.4 percent under Mr. Carter.

The unemployment rate for all workers, including the military, will average 9 percent under Mr. Reagan, against 6.25 percent under Mr.

Budget deficits will average nearly $150 billion a year under Mr.

Reagan, compared with less than $50 billion under Mr. Carter.

• Federal revenues as a percentage of GNP will average nearly the same in both administrations, at 20 percent, but federal expenditures under Mr. Reagan will average 24 percent of GNP, compared with 21 percent under Mr. Carter.

But this bosscore may not be a very good predictor of how the electorate will react to the comparisons of the Republican and Democratic performance in the past two administrations. Mr. Reagan's timing promises to be better in political terms than Mr. Carter's. The rate of gain in real GNP slid downward during the Carter years, with a small uptick at the end, whereas Mr. Reagan got his recession out of the way during the first two years and should offer voters a rising trend through 1983 and 1984

Others Show Objectivity

Just as Mr. Stein reveals his objectivity in dealing with the numbers, so do Walter W. Heller, professor of economics at the University of Minnesota who served as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers der Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, and his close under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, and ins close collaborator, George L. Perry, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution.

John Blair plunged 5 to 37%. The Stock lost 2½ Thursday after the Writing in the economic letter of the National City Bank of Minneapolis, they say:

"We disagree with those who foresee the mega-deficits bringing this recovery to an early end. Given the big margin of unused potential in the economy — nearly 10.5 million job seekers and one-fourth of unused potential in the economy — the Federal Reserve can for some time shield the economy from rising interest rates even in the face of those deficits." Mr. Heller and Mr. Perry prove their objectivity by forecasting a fourth-quarter-over-fourth-quarter gain of 4.5 percent in 1984 and a year-over-year increase of 5.5 percent to 6 percent. Thus do economic theory and practical politics make both strange bedfellows and estranged former bedfellows. As for the voters, they are more likely to judge not by theory or ideology, but by recent results, asking the politicians, "What have you done for me, or to me, lately?" New York Times Service of Prodential-Bache. Hugh Johnson of First Albany said the setback "was a knee-jerk reaction to a political event and gave nervous investors an excuse to sell. The market had been quiet before the news."

Big investors staved on the sidelines to await the Federal Reserve's post-market report on the money supply, which showed a $2.4-bil-lion decline. That could help the market next week.

The bond market moved up in anticipation of the decline. But experts said the Fed still was not likely to ease credit as long as the economy continued to expand rather rapidly.

For Bell System Managers, Divestiture Represents the Chance of a Lifetime

By Karen W. Arenson

NEW YORK - Most new companies are satisfied o begin life with a nest egg counted in thousands, or perhaps millions, of dollars. On Jan. 1, with the breakup of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., seven new companies will spring forth fully formed, each with nearly $20 billion in assets and $10 billion in Markedly smaller than the old AT&T, they will nonetholess rank as giants of U.S. industry, bigger than virtually every other utility in the United States. Each will have as much in assets as U.S. Steel and more revenues than Chrysler or Dow Chemical, and will be bigger than all but a handful of U.S.

For the executives tapped to lead these companies, it is the stuff of which dreams are made. But their experiences could just as easily turn into nightmares. Some employees are describing the challenge of the Bell System's breakup with an analogy, noted Jerry Blatherwick, a vice president for comm Southwestern Bell: "It is that divesting AT&T without disrupting phone service is like taking apart a 747 and reassembling it into two 727's in midair." He added, "We think things are going smoothly, but we won't really know if we overlooked anything until the divestiture actually occurs on Jan. 1.

Even if nothing goes wrong, said Delbert C. Staley, chairman and chief executive officer of Nynex, the regional company that will serve New York and New England, "customers are likely to feel that they are getting poorer service, because they will have to go to different sources for equipment, local phone lines and long-distance services, which they used to get all from

On the regional executives' shoulders will also rest the expectations of millions of investors - sophisticated pension-fund managers as well as the traditional widows and orphans - anxious not just that their dividends be maintained but also that the companies show good growth. The Bell System's 3 million shareholders face a confusing array of new stocks that will begin to trade Nov. 16: For every 10 shares of AT&T stock, they will receive one share in each of the (Continued on Page 9, Col.3)

Key U.S. Index Increased 0.9% In September

By John M. Berry

WASHINGTON - The index of leading U.S. indicators rose 0.9 percent in September, with in-creases in new business formations and the length of the average workweek in manufacturing accounting for most of the gain, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

The department also revised the figures for July and August, which cartier had been reported as an 0.8percent increase and a 0.1-percent decline, respectively. The new July estimate was a 0.6-percent gain and the revised figure for August was a

For the third quarter as a whole, the index rose 2.8 percent, substantially less than the 5.9-percent increase in the first quarter or the 4.7percent gain in the second period. The September increase pleased the White House, which issued a statement saying, "Since leading indicators are predictive of economic activity, today's figures show we can expect steady eco-nomic growth in the months ahead..... This is the 13th consecutive month of increases in the leading Nevertheless, the slowdown in the quarterly rate of increase suggests that economic growth is likely to be slower in coming months, analysts said. In addition, fragmentary October figures for several of the indicators point to a much smaller increase, or possibly even a decline, in the index this month, the analysts said.

Only 10 of the index's 12 indicators were available. Five went up and five went down, but the increases were generally much larger than the declines.

Also contributing to the rise in the index were higher stock prices, higher contracts and orders for business plant and equipment and a drop in initial claims for unemployment benefits.

Falling indicators were the covering new orders for manufactured consumer goods and a measure of the money supply, both adjusted for inflation, the number of companies receiving slower deliveries from suppliers, building permits, and the change in sensitive materials prices materials prices.

A separate index of four indicators that move coincidently with changes in the economy rather than in advance of them rose 1.6 percent. An index of lagging indicators fell 0.7 percent.

Peugeot did not give first-half consolidated results but forecast a 1983 consolidated loss considera bly below the 1982 shortfall of 2.15 billion francs. It added that the group would not achieve its target of breaking even this year.

The company said the 1983 forecast was due to higher costs that have only been partially reflected in the selling prices of Pengeot ve-hicles. In addition, it said, productivity gains have been less than hoped for.

American Can Planning to Purchase Brokerage Owned by Vice Chairman

American Can said on Thursday that it would pay 87,209 shares of its stock to a holding company owned by Mr. Tsai for his brokerage firm. At Thursday's closing price of $43.675 a share, that would be worth about $3.8 million. American Can has been going through a major restructuring. The fompany still makes metal cans, as well as plastic packages, but has add its paper operations and has made several purchases in financial services in the last two years, boying insurance companies and a mutual fund group. Mr. Tsai, 54, joined American

Can as an executive vice president early last year, when the company bought Associated Madison Companies, the small life insurance group he was running. Promoted to vice chairman in June, he has acknowledged that he would like the chairman's job, and his future is believed tied to his success in moving American Can into financia

Manville Gets Reorganization Delay

NEW YORK (AP) - Manville Corp., which entered bankruptcy court 15 months ago, has been given 11 extra days to submit a reorganization plan that is acceptable to its creditors and to representatives of asbestos

The company filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on Aug. 26, 1982, because of the thousands of lawsuits filed by people claiming health damage from exposure to asbestos made by Manville, and in anticipation of more suits.

Manville said Thursday it was ready to file a plan for paying its creditors and settling the suits even though the plan would be opposed by representatives of the asbestos victims.

Ford U.K. Proffers a 4.1% Pay Rise LONDON -Ford's British unit has offered its 44,500 hourly workers history, said Friday it earned $76.8 million in the third quarter.

Pan Am's profit in the quarter ended Sept. 30 marked the airline's second consecutive profitable quarter this year and the first backto-back quarterly profits since 1979. In the third quarter last year, Pan Am had a $28.8-million loss.

Pan Am, which had a $485.3million loss for all of last year, a record for the industry, said its third-quarter profit came on a 2.2 percent rise in revenue to $1.077 billion from $1.053 billion. Its expenses fell 4 percent to $1.001 bil-

Meeting Held On U.S. Steel Import Plan

PITTSBURGH - U.S. Steel Corp. said Friday that it has concluded three days of closed-door talks with officials of British Steel Corp. about a controversial import plan and will continue negotiations that month.

Brazil Publishes New Wage-Cut Law

BRASILIA - The government has published another wage-cutting law — the fifth this year — with a stern warning that Brazi's recession-riddled society could make no further concessions to foreign bankers. Government leaders said they were confident that the new law would win enough support among government party dissidents and a minor rightist opposition grouping to gain congressional approval. "Each society has its own limit for supporting sacrifices," Labor Minister Murillo Macedo said Thursday after eight hours of negotiations between pro-government politicians and ministers who deal with the economy.

Our creditors must understand that this is the maximum for us," he said, warning that "any greater sacrifice would create an unsupportable simation."

While the government fights to enact policies that will reduce percent inflation, oow at a rate of about 175 percent, foreign bankers and the International Monetary Fund have suspended multibillionfication by both houses of the congress within 60 legislative days, re-tained sliding-scale cuts introduced earlier to limit future six-month increases to a percentage of past in-flation, but reduced the overall severity of the cuts from 80 percent of the official inflation index to about 87 percent for the work force as a whole, the government said. The more than two-thirds of workers who earn up to $35 a week will receive higher indexing. There was also protection for mortgage payers and pensioners. The top rate of income tax rose from 55 percent

Political sources said the law was drawn up after President João Baptista Figueiredo ordered Planning Minister Antônio Delfim Netto to accept some of the demands of gov-ernment party dissidents to "go easier on the middle class" and so help win congressional approval.

LAURA Z: A Life

15 Passé

By Laura Z. Hobson. Illustrated. 410 pp. $17.95.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

THOUGH Laura Z. Hobson is famous for hav-I ing written the best-seller about anti-semitism Gentlemen's Agreement," her autobiography shows that this was only a small part of her achievement. At a time when the world seemed to be a closed corporation managed by men, she carved out a career for herself by being stubborn, tireless, resourceful and smart. Yet she never became hardedged or ruthless as some career women, not unnaturally, did. On the evidence of "Laura Z," she was, and is, what used to be called "a good person," an expression we now tend to give an ironical inflection, as if it were equivalent to belonging to a mildly fanatical religious sect.

Quite a few autobiographies are published these days by people whose lives hardly seem to have warranted them. Some of these books are rationalized by their style, for almost any life is interesting if it's written with enough style, Hobson's "Laura Z," however, makes comparatively little effort in the direction of style. She has so much to say about her 83 years on earth that she just lets it tumble out, She was born in 1900 in New York City and soon moved to Long Island, where her father built a small two-story house whose outside stairway was, ac-cording to Hobson, put on "backwards," running from the rear to the front, instead of the other way around. Perhaps this was a form of protest on the part of her father, who had been a political prisoner in Russia and was now editor of the Jewish Daily Forward. Laura, though, was conventional enough, or American enough at the time to be profoundly embarrassed by their eccentric stairway and for the things straight. At her first job as a cub copywriter, she met Tom Mount, who had had a story published in H.L. Mencken's Smart Set magazine. Before long, they were living together in Greenwich Village, an act so daring in their circle that they had to pretend to be married. Mount took a year off to write while Laura supported him — a classically deluded experiment — and when this failed, he went off to Tahiti.

novelist, she was certainly a genius as a writer of advertising. When she told Henry Luce that the promotion for Time magazine was pompous, he grudgingly hired her to improve on it. And she certainly did. Her copy had a tightness, a precision and a direct emotional appeal that some readers may find missing in her novels.

Unlike many autobiographical writers who were intimate with famous people, Hobson is not much given to gossip. Yet, since she is writing about her life, she can hardly avoid a few eyebrow-raising anecdotes. In one of these, Clare Boothe Brokaw asked Hobson to undress in her presence, After five pregnancies and four miscarriages, Mrs. Brokaw said, she wanted to see what a wellpreserved body looked like. She was planning, she explained, to have her own figure "fixed," so that she could be "perfect for Harry" [Luce].

Twice engaged to marry Ralph Ingersoll, then publisher of Time, Hobson describes his leaving her practically at the altar in order to give his full attention to the newspaper PM, which he was about to edit. Later.

When Hobson sketched out the plot of the novelin-progress that was to become "Gentleman's Agreement," Dorothy Thompson, the crusading foreign correspondent, was pessimistic. So was Richard Simon, the publisher of Hobson's first novel, "The Trespassers." As she points out, we may have forgotten that in 1930s and '40s, Time could refer to France's premier as "Jew Bhum," and that Representative John Rankin, after describing the columnist Walter Winchell as a "little kike" while addressing the House could be requiled as presented. addressing the House, could be roundly applauded.

For Hobson, anti-semitism in the United States, though generally denied in polite circles, was all too real and she persisted with her book. She still wanted the stairways in her country to run in the right direction. The book, and the movie with Gregory Peck, made her rich and famous. But while "Gentleman's Agreement" was an important story for its time, "Laura Z" is a better one. While truth is no longer stranger than fiction, it is sometimes

The 10s came in the final rotation in which the top four teams from Monday's compulsory exercises were grouped. BUDAPEST — The currency of gymnastics, which is based on "10" as the score for a perfect performance, was devalued somewhat Thursday at the World Gymnastics Championships when no fewer and teammates Natalia Yourcheako and Olga Mostepanova made perfect vanits. Romania, meanwhile, was working on the uneven bars at the same time, getting 10s from Ecaterina Szabo and Lavinia Agache.

Experienced onlookers called it the most amazing three minutes of gymnastics they had ever seen. But later, others wondered if it wasn't the most amazing and boldest example of collusion gymnastics ever

This raises two issues in gymnastics, issues already well worked over. Namely the favoritism of East-bloc adges, who tend to dominate the panels and who tend to overscore their athletes. The second, of course, is sour grapes - the complaints of the rest of field who either do not have the right judges or else - could this be? — the right athlete

Mike Jacqui, president of the United States Gym-nastics Federation and the representative of the U.S. Delegation here, took a middle road on all this, saying: "The East European judges may cooperate from time to time, but not in the raising of the top gymnasts' scores. The effects of their judging tend to be seen in the raising of the lesser gymnasts' scores."

The best of the Soviet female gymnasts is not 15-uses old Oles Bicheson the defending these in Shanning Shanning year-old Olga Bicherova, the defending champion. She is unkindly regarded as the most overrated gymnast in Bicherova, although she had a 10 and a 9.9, was not among the top three scorers from her team so she did not advance to Saturday's all-around finals, the individual portion of the seven-day meet. Instead, the three Soviet representatives will be Yourchenko, the halfway leader; Mostepanova, currently in third place, and Tatisma Frolova.

Also in the running for the individual crown are Romania's Agache and Szabo, who finished second and fourth. And so is remarkable Maxi Gnauck of East Germany, whose elbow was shattered this spring and who is coming back from a big surgery. In her first international meet since then, the girl who rated a 10 percent chance of returning to the sport in May is now in fifth place in the all-around. And this despite a disastrous 9.3 in the floor exercises when she fell. That Gnanck survived that gaffe threw chills into anyone who hoped to pass her. Regarded as a 10 in the body and a 12 in the head, she has a history of freezing on the floor. In the last world championships she had three 9.95s and then finished 30th when she walked off the floor midway through her routine. The word on her is that she's afraid to tumble. But not, evidently, very much afraid. Or just not anymore.

The U.S team, without its No. 1 and 3 members -Dianne Durham and Mary Lou Retton - probably fared as well as it could in this meet, finishing seventh. One thing, though, the United States will be in the Olympics. The 11 other teams to survive the qualifier include, in order, the Soviet Union, Romania, East Germany, Bulgaria, China, Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Hungary, Canada, North Korea and Japan.

Talks Stalled: NBA Referees On Sidelines

NEW YORK - The National Basketball Association was to open its season Friday with nine games, all staffed by substitute referees to replace the regulars, who have been unable to achieve a new contract with the league.

The latest talks between the two sides lasted five hours Thursday in Princeton, New Jersey. But progress was described as meager, and both the league and the National Association of Basketball Referees. representing the 29 regular offi-cials, said there would not be enough time to get them in the opening games no matter what appened at negotiations.

Thursday's talks were held as some of the league's 23 teams engaged in transactions to meet the deadline for achieving a 12-man roster limit.

After the meeting between the league and the referees, the NBA said it had put an additional proposal on the table that would have increased the starting salaries to $28,000, from the league's original offer of $24,000.

Richie Phillips, the union's gen-eral counsel, acknowledged the offer but said: "It was unacceptable because it was the same for all three years of the enntract. They wouldn't budge on the second and third years.' Phillips also said that the union had reduced its salary demands for each of the three years in a new contract. It is now asking $32,000 for starting referees, he said, in-stead of $35,000 in the first year, $35,000 instead of $37,000 in the second year, and $38,800 instead of $39,000 in the final year.

Phillips said the referees would picket the game between the 76ers and the Washington Bullets at the Spectrum in Philadelphia and the New York Knicks' home opener Saturday night against the Washington Bullets at Madison Square

Medical Panel Urges Ban on Boxing

VENICE (AP) — The World Medical Association, in a document issued at the end of its yearly congress here, Friday demanded a worldwide ban on boxing on the grounds it produces health risks.

The document also recommended new boxing rules granting to the ring doctor the power to stop the light in any moment "he recognizes any clinical danger." At present only the referee can stop the fight. The doctor is consulted in case of serious cuts or injuries suffered by the contenders. Andre Wynen, the association's secretary general, said that boxing may cause brain lesions even to fighters who never suffered a knockout.

Andy Bean had a five-under-par 66 and was tied for second with Dan Pobl and Rounie Black. Lon Hinkle and Jeff Shunan followed at 67. The

Murphy of NBA Rockets Retires

HOUSTON (UPI) -- Calvin Murpby, a 13-year veteran guard and the only original Houston Rocket left on the National Basketball Association team, announced Thursday he was retiring immediately to make room for younger players.
The Rockets were faced with an NBA deadline of Friday for cutting their roster from 15 to 12 and observers had said Coach Bill Fitch faced a difficult choice between Murphy, 35, and three younger players. Murphy's retirement simplifies Fitch's choices.

Murphy, at 5-foot-9 one of the shortest players in the NBA, had a career total of 17,949 points and ranked 17th on the all-time NBA

Portugal Defeats Poland in Soccer

WROCLAW, Poland (UPI) — Portugal defeated Poland, 1-0, Friday on a goal by Carlos Manuel in the 31st minute to boost its chances of reaching next year's European Championship soccer finals in France. Portugal will play host to the Soviet Union, the leader of the qualifying Group 2 on Nov. 13, and must win to overtake the Soviet side and advance to the finals. However, the Soviet Union will travel to Portugal with the psychological advantage of already having won, 5-0, at home over Portugal on April 27.

Pryor Says He Is Quitting Boxing

NEW YORK (NYT) - Aaron Pryor, the 27-year-old undefeated World Boxing Association junior welterweight champion, carried out a promise with the announcement of his retirement Wednesday. The official word came in a letter from Robert Bucechner, his lawyer, to James Binns, the lawyer and legal adviser for the WBA.

"We represent Aaron Pryor," the letter said, "and hereby give you formal nutice that he has retired as the undefeated world's junior welterweight champion.

Binns said Johnny Bumphus, the No. 1 challenger, undefeated in 17 bouts, and Sang Ho Lee of South Korea, No. 2, would meet to fill the After Pryor defended his title last September against Alexis Arguello, he talked about retirement. However, in all the retirement talk, he has always left the door open for a possible return, either for a fight against Ray (Boom Boom) Mancini, the WBA lightweight champion, or even against Bumphus, if he were to heat Sang and then build his reputation. Did you see the story in the newspaper? The president is asking for major changes in the country's gun laws."

"You mean to make it harder to buy a gun?"

No, stupid, to make it easier, The gun control act of 1968 was too tough on law-abiding citizens. He's backing a bill now in Congress which will make it possible for you to order a gun through the mail as well as from another state without any red tape." You mean I can huy one Buchwald through the mail this Christmas?" I asked.

"Maybe not this Christmas. But surely by 1984. The bill is now backed by 52 senators and 120 House members. By election time we'll have the others all lined up." "I can't wait for my gun catalog," I said.
"Right now there's a slight kicker in the bill. If you order it by mail, the buyer and the seller have to meet face to face before you can make a deal."

How can f do that, if I live in Washington and the dealer is in Dallas, Texas?"

Dahney grinned. "It won't be easy. That's why we're not fighting that part of the bill."

"How else will the law he changed?

"The bill provides that no records have to be kept when a weapon is sold from one person to a is the president so emotionally inparty in annther state. "Not only that," said Dabney "but the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms will need a search warrant before they will be allowed to look at a gun dealer's books."

"What a boon to the gun business in the United States," I said. "Almost anybody will be able to buy a gun now without Big Brother looking over his shoulder."

"The anti-gun lobby is trying to get an amendment attached to the bill that would require a waiting period for gun purchases to allow local police time to check out the huyer to see if he's got a criminal conviction or has a mental disorder. But our lobby will fight that one to the death. When a person wants a gun, he should get it as soon as he focks over his money." "I should hope so. Someone could try and kill him while he's waiting to be cleared." "Not only that, but the police would have his name in the compnter forever. We don't want anybody in this country to know who has a gun. Look what happened in Poland."

"I forgot about Poland."

"Another good thing that could come out of this bill is that the administration wants to permit licensed dealers to sell their wares at gun shows. Now they can only display them."

'Doonesbury'

B.D. and the Rest of the Trudeau Gang

Are Warming Up for Broadway

By Jay Sharbutt The Associated Press

TEW YORK - It has Duke, I student of controlled substances and the former governor of Samoa. And Joanie Cancus, champion of liberation. And Zonker, who is into tanning. And B.D., still in football helmet.

Along with Mike, Mark, Honey and Roland Hedley Jr., they're all coming to Broadway next month in a new musical.

The show is "Doonesbury," now in a Boston warmup run. It is based on Garry Trudeau's popular, satirical, topical and, for the time being, on-leave cartoon strip of the same name. The musical begins previews at the Biltmore Theatre in New York on Nov. 3 and opens Nov. 13. This is not Trudeau's first ef-cated cartoonery. In 1977, he and others cooked up an animated television special based on the strip. But James Walsh, the producer of the musical, said the Broadway-bound "Doonesbury" was not at all like the TV show. "As a matter of fact one of the things we wanted to do from the start was a 'book' show' - with a

The book uses the Doonesbury characters, obviously, but it isn't stuff that's been in the strip before, It's all new."

The musical is set at Walden the counterculture commune that was the starting point for the strip when it began in 1970. Only 30 newspapers carried "Doones-bury" then. Last year, when 723 papers were running it, Trudeau said he was temporarily shutting it down in January to take a breather.

He has been busy in the meantime. He wrote the musical's book and lyrics, with Elizabeth ("Runaways") Swados contributng the score.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist, who is married to Jane Pauley, co-bost of NBC's "Today" show, is the J.D. Salinger of his craft - be does interviews about as often as the sun rises in the West. So Walsh, an articulate, neatly dressed New York stage veteran who hails from Denver, has been pressed into service to talk up the new show.

The musical, with a cast of 11 and a budget of $2 million, began as a workshop project and has been in the works for five years. Walsh said

The show picks up where the strip left off - with Josnie Caucus and her new baby, and with many of the Walden inmates finally forced to graduate from college and otherwise face the realities of adult life, the producer

Walsh's wife, Juliette Taylor, a filmcasting director, picked the players - not an easy task. Walsh noted. The idea was to get actors who resembled the characters in "Doonesbury," he says, and "that was probably one of the roughest things to do, to get people who can dance, sing and act, and look like those charac-

In a letter communicated by telephone to Czeslaw Mi-losz, the Polish-born poet who won the 1980 literature prize, Walesa, former leader of the outlawed Solidarity movement, launched an appeal to free political prisoners and establish a real dialogue with the Polish people. Milosz said Walesa did not attend the conference because he was afraid Polish authorities would not let him back in the country. Not everyone liked the conference's combative tone. "I don't think it was particularly helpful to men the conference into an East-West wrangle," William Golding, who won the 1983 literature prize, said after the conference, which ended Friday.

The French philosopher and Aron, who died in Paris Oct. 17 at age 78, was cited for "showing time and again his critical sense and respect for the freedom of the individual in his philosophical and journalistic pubheations." The French novelist Marguerite Yourcenar, the British philosopher Issiah Bedin, and the Polish-born philosopher Leszek Kotakowski, who has published extensively on religious questions, the 7th-century freethinkers and Marxism, also received the award. Each received 100,000 guilders (about $34,000) at the Erasmus Foundation's 25th annual prizegiving ceremony in Amsterdam.

Truman Capote, who had pleaded guilty to drunk driving charges last August, was fined $500 and put on three years probation Thursday in Southampton, New York. For Niven, "the bad times, the dotty film directors, the misadventures, all became subjects for laughter, but laughter without maiice, without bitterness. I shall hear it always," he said. Niven died July
